STAT

Ken has talked on the phone a couple of times with Dr. Robert Price, a senior scientist at Sperry Research Center in Massachusetts with whom he has had previous contact (July 1983). Price's hobby is research on WWII scrambler telephones. He has completed an article, in collaboration with David Kahn, about the secret trans-Atlantic telephone Roosevelt and Churchill used during World War II. The article is for the IEEE professional journal Spectrum. Price had been talking with someone at NSA who wanted to get in touch with a CIA retiree and asked for Ken's help. [redacted] is checking on procedures.

STAT

Diane attended a two-day course at OTE on Stress Management. She will be attending another course there on 10-11 September.

STAT

Diane has finally completed the tedious processing of the History Staff's holdings [redacted]. One by-product was getting 52 Top Secret documents downgraded and removed from the TSCADs list. A new set of documents -- totalling 2000 pages -- has arrived from the Johnson Library for review for the State Department's FRUS project. Diane has begun to process these.

STAT

Bob interviewed [redacted] last week. They were in telephone contact -- an exchange of courtesies -- again this week.

Ken received a call from OSO. They were looking for a history of the Office of ELINT, and Ken told them that the RMO/DDS&T is the custodian.

STAT

[redacted] received a call from [redacted] of the IG Staff. They are beginning an inspection of CPAS and want background on the history of its components. [redacted] directed her to the RMO/DDI, who is custodian of the unpublished OCI history and also of copies of the series of Cartography histories. [redacted] suggested a couple of the latter that seem particularly relevant and supplied their identification numbers.

Charles Briggs, D/OLL, borrowed a copy of our history entitled "Military Secrets in an Open Society: The Yale Report."

STAT

has spent three days nursing our malfunctioning Wang equipment and dealing with Wang service personnel. We apparently have had some permanent loss of material from the system.
